Carapace Rock Science is the premier manufacturer of hollow lightweight rocks and boulders, naturally textured stepping stones, waterfalls and stand-alone boulder water features. Our products are amazingly realistic in appearance since they are molded directly from nature. Professionals and homeowners use our products for striking landscape, waterscape and xeriscape designs. Our products are nearly indistinguishable from their natural counterparts once incorporated into a design. The addition of these items into a landscape creates a complete and refined space that significantly increases value and curb appeal.

The Carapace molding and manufacturing process is proprietary. The result is a stunningly realistic look with impeccable quality and durability. Only naturally derived concrete pigments are used. Pigments are present through the entire cross section of our products. Our proprietary process creates a realistic, rich and warm tone, with excellent color stability. Products age beautifully, and are stable to the elements. Our hollow items have a uniform thickness, giving them exceptional strength and durability. On average, items are ½” to 1” thick, and hollow, making them much lighter than the original. The realism and details can only be truly appreciated in person.

All products, including stepping stones, are molded directly from natural rocks and boulders from various areas of the US and Canada. We find the most unique and desirable rocks and replicate them for everyone. Since we manufacture clones of the originals, the impact to our environment is greatly reduced because these products do not have to be quarried and sorted through to find an interesting specimen to meet the demands of discerning customers. Plus, the entire manufacturing process has been carefully engineered to be extremely efficient and Earth friendly. The applications for our products are limited only by your imagination.
